Note:

1. The sample of counterfeit money that is used in checking the operation of the machines is composed of different types of counterfeit money that are most frequently found in circulation. As the National Bank cannot envisage nor to exclude the possibility of emergence of new types of counterfeit money that were not included in the sample used in checking the machines, responsibility of the producer is to regularly test the machines. In addition, distributors and users of the machines have responsibility to periodically update the devices (modules) installed in the machines in order to detect new types of counterfeits;
2. The National Bank does not accept any liability for any direct or implicit damage occurred in checking the operation of the machines, the result of the verification as well as with the publication, not publishing or removing the machines from the website of the National Bank;
3. The published results of the verification of the operation of the machines do not imply recommendation by the National Bank to third parties to use or not to use the machines that received a positive opinion;
4. The National Bank does not provide any warranty, direct or implicit, for the fitness of the machines published on the list of successfully tested machines and their ability constantly and without errors to detect counterfeit money or perform selection whether the users of the machine use the machines in accordance with the instructions for use or not.
